Not only do unconventional hairstyles and colors distract from learning, they may prevent students from being hired for a job that requires them to present a professional image like hair, jewelry and make-up also distract from this image. (Transition Sentence)

Schools should enforce dress codes that limit excessive jewelry. (Topic Sentence) The only jewelry that should be allowed is a simple necklace for both males and females, provided it is kept inside of the shirt. Long necklaces, earrings, and rings are present a safety hazard in classes such as science lab, woodshop, and physical education. Like hair and dress, they can also distract from learning. Putting these rules in place now will ensure that students are prepared to meet similar standards when they enter the workplace.

In summary, setting high expectations for students' appearance will help them carry adequate dress and grooming standards into their adult life. This should include a dress code that is considered as a conservative school uniform will help students learn to present themselves as clean-cut young adults. In addition to a uniform, students should be required to be well-groomed and avoid excessive jewelry. (The author summarizes the argument.) The time to implement dress codes in schools across the country is now. (The author restates the thesis.) Contact a local Congressman or Senator to send ask them to present legislation for a vote on a nation-wide dress code. (The author calls the audience to action.) Students around the country will be in a better position to succeed in school and in their working life.
