Simulating Night Vision Goggle Effects in a Virtual Environment Robert J. Pleban, 2002 This research examined the capabilities of virtual environments to simulate night vision goggle NVG effects Different solutions for simulating NVG images were assessed Two conditions simulated NVGs but used different software approaches Two additional conditions simulated unaided night environments that required soldiers to wear NVGs Four man infantry teams conducted urban operation missions under each condition Objective assessments were obtained on the number of events correctly detected and the average time required to detect an event Subjective assessments of task difficulty and image fidelity were also made No significant differences were found across night conditions for either event detection or time Significant differences in task difficulty ratings occurred for movement visual detection and maintaining situation awareness In general tasks were more difficult to perform while wearing the NVGs compared to simulated versions of NVG images Soldiers also ranked the conditions involving actual NVGs as more realistic The unique contribution of virtual environments for night operations training may be at the entry level However specific image fidelity issues associated with the use of NVGs in simulated unaided night environments must be addressed if this approach is to be used as an effective training medium Stinet

High Points in the Work of the High Schools of New York City, 1927 Bulletin of High Points in the Work of the High Schools of New York City, 1927

Reclaiming Assessment Chris W. Gallagher, 2007 No Child Left Behind and accountability programs generally operate via assessment driven instruction causing a deprofessionalization of teachers and a disengagement of students Chris Gallagher offers us an alternative instruction driven assessment with teachers as the primary assessment instrument It looks like a way to restore teachers as professionals and to restore students as engaged learners and it looks doable Gerald W Bracey author of Reading Educational Research How to Avoid Getting Statistically Snookered This is the most engaging exciting and useful book on assessment I have read in a long time

Chris Gallagher draws on the rich experiences of Nebraska educators to show why and how that state's teachers are leading a profoundly important assessment revolution. Monty Neill, Executive Director, FairTest National Center for Fair Open Testing, Reclaiming Assessment details a more humane, more educationally sound way to conduct assessments than what is called for in national and state test-based accountability policies. It examines how Nebraska rejected harmful high-stakes testing in favor of teacher-designed assessments through a groundbreaking local control assessment system. Presenting vital conceptual details and practical information for any state, district, or school committed to finding something better for their students than filling ovals, Chris Gallagher focuses in on what makes Nebraska's plan work and how it can transform and has transformed classrooms and policies. In particular, he homes in on four key aspects of successful teacher-led assessment: engaging teachers by reinvesting them with classroom and curricular-level decision-making power; engaging students through meaningful classroom assessment; engaging colleagues through a new energizing model of professional development; engaging parents and other community members through school community projects. In each instance, Gallagher combines lessons from Nebraska's school improvement program with portraits of practice vignettes written by Nebraska educators that give a close-up look at how the state's assessment system works, why it works, the settings in which it's making a difference, and the leadership styles that match its goals best. Both a challenge to educators to take back assessment from politicized top-level bureaucrats and a call to create a new agenda for contemporary education, Reclaiming Assessment is an ideal starting point for your efforts to return to student-centered, not test-centered, assessment. Put your trust in educators' abilities to observe and know their students; then read Reclaiming Assessment, adopt an assessment model that's already succeeding in hundreds of schools, and start improving how your students are assessed today.
