

Imagine an agent in the city of Arad, Romania, enjoying a vacation holiday. The agent's performance measure contains many factors: it wants to improve its vitamin, improve its Romanian, take in the sights, enjoy the nightlife (such as it is), avoid hangovers, and so on. The decision problem is a complex one involving many tradeoffs and careful reading of guidebooks. Now, suppose the agent is to fly out of Bucharest the following day. In that case, the agent's goal is to get to Bucharest. Courses of action are evaluated by their expected utility, and the agent chooses the one with the highest utility by limiting the number of actions it considers. The goal measure, is the expected utility of the action.

We will consider the goal of getting to Bucharest. The goal is satisfied if the agent reaches a goal state (or a state that is a goal state on its behalf) what is the level of "need" for the goal? The agent would like to reach the goal because at that point it would have reached too many steps and states to consider. Let us assume that the agent is in Arad and is considering where to go next, one to Timisoara, and one
