Flachmann, Alexandra MacLennan, 2004 Emotional Intelligence, Academic Intelligence and Speed of Mind: The Case of Emotion Perception Arnold Ackerer, 2004-02-09 Doctoral Thesis Dissertation from the year 2003 in the subject Psychology Personality Psychology grade very good University of Graz Psychology Personality Psychology language English abstract The EI construct which developed mainly during the last decade has been split into an ability EI and a trait EI Originally EI was proposed as an intelligence needed because emotional information is processed differently from non emotional information However due to the lack of adequate objective measures for ability EI trait EI became popular In this study an innovative approach building on the use of mental speed MS measures was theoretically justified and applied to emotional information processing in order to tackle the criterion problem for emotional test items and to investigate the relationship between mental speed and intelligence Emotional and non emotional tests following a simple reaction time RT and the Posner paradigm were constructed and administered along with Raven's APM to a sample of 121 college and university students at Hiroshima University Japan. Approximately half of these students were Japanese nationals while the other half were international students coming from countries all over the world. The APM score correlated low but significantly with both RT tests but neither with the emotional nor the non-emotional long-term memory LTM access times. In varimax factor analyses FA, the emotional MS tests grouped together to one factor while IQ and non-emotional MS tests formed two more factors. Additionally, an AMOS Analysis of Moment Structures, an SPSS-compatible program for structural equation modelling distributed by Smallwaters Company, model confirmed the existence of two factors: one for the emotional and one for the non-emotional test scores. This general picture did also not change substantially when the data were analysed separately for the two groups: Japanese international students. Although there were some changes in the size of single correlations among MS test scores, the results of the FA as well as the AMOS model were supported in the separated group data.

Smarter, Faster, Better Karlin Sloan, 2006-06-12 In this groundbreaking book, acclaimed executive coach Karlin Sloan offers leaders a variety of self-assessments, habits, strategies, and sustainable practices that they can use to become what today's marketplace demands: smarter, faster, and better. Karlin Sloan shows what it takes to make the move to the next level to become a leader who both grows the bottom line and contributes to stakeholders and the world in a positive way. Based on research, study, and the author's extensive experience as a coach to leaders of top organizations, this book shows how to become smarter, faster, and better by examining these questions: What are your key strengths and what do you need to develop or leverage? What are you focused on now and what do you need to accomplish to really get ahead? Are your values in line with your work? What is the end you are trying to achieve?

Teaching Global Citizenship Lloyd Kornelsen, Geraldine Balzer, Karen M. Magro, 2020-12-18 Teaching Global Citizenship brings together perspectives from former and current teachers from across Canada to tackle the unique challenges surrounding educating for global awareness. The contributors discuss strategies for encouraging young people to cultivate a sense of agency and global responsibility. Reflecting on the educator's experience, each chapter engages with critical questions surrounding teaching global citizenship, such as how to help students understand and navigate the tension at the heart of global citizenship between universalism and pluralism and how to do so without frightening, regressing, mythicizing, imposing, or colonizing. Based on narrative inquiry, the contributors convey their insights through stories from their classroom experiences, which take place in diverse educational settings from New Brunswick to British Columbia to Nunavut in rural and urban areas and in public and private schools. Covering a broad range of topics surrounding the complexity of educating for global citizenship, this timely text will benefit those in education: global citizenship curriculum development and social studies courses across Canada. FEATURES Grounded in narrative inquiry, experiential learning, and teacher-based research. Includes study questions at the end of each chapter. Written by teachers for teachers, with the accessibility of the material, diverse voices, and a broad spectrum of classroom settings in mind.
