

The background is a painting of a village with red-roofed houses and cypress trees on a hillside. The houses are clustered together, with some having multiple stories and others being smaller. The roofs are a deep red, and the walls are in shades of yellow, orange, and white. Several tall, dark cypress trees are scattered throughout the scene. The hills in the background are green and rolling, under a blue sky with some clouds. The overall style is reminiscent of a classic oil painting.

Hölzle,2025-10-01 Drawing on two years of ethnographic research in the north eastern borderlands of Bangladesh this book focuses on the everyday struggles of indigenous farmers threatened with losing their land due to such state programmes as the realignment of the national border ecotourism social forestry and the establishment of a military cantonment In implementing these programmes state actors challenge farmers right to land instituting spaces of violence in which multiple forms of marginalisation overlap and are reinforced Mapping how farmers react to these challenges emotionally and practically the book argues that these land conflicts serve as a starting point for existentially charged disputes in which the survival efforts of farmers clash with the political imaginations and practices of the nation state The analysis shows that losing land represents more than being deprived of a material asset it is nothing less than the extinction of ways of life
