Dismantling Desegregation The Quiet Reversal Of Brown V Board Of Education:

Dismantling Desegregation Gary Orfield, Susan E. Eaton, 1996 Discusses the reversal of desegregation in public schools

The Emancipatory Promise of Charter Schools Eric Rofes, Lisa M. Stulberg, 2012-02-01 This book opens up a critical conversation among progressive educators of various generations races perspectives and social locations concerning one specific school reform initiative charter schools Eric Rofes and Lisa M Stulberg bring together scholars who both study and actively participate in school choice reform and charge them to be bold in their questioning and assertive in their own ambivalence about this complex controversial public issue and to include issues that are underexamined in the school literature such as the impact of school choice on race and class politics and inequalities The editors argue that charter schools are playing a powerful role in reviving participation in public education expanding opportunities for progressive methods in public school classrooms and generating new energy for community based community controlled school initiatives The result is a groundbreaking volume that pushes boundaries questions assumptions and rocks foundations of progressive thought

Encyclopedia of African American Education Kofi Lomotey, 2010 The Encyclopedia of African American Education covers educational institutions at every level from preschool through graduate and professional training with special attention to historically black and predominantly black colleges and universities Other entries cover individuals organizations associations and publications that have had a significant impact on African American education The Encyclopedia also presents information on public policy affecting the education of African Americans including both court decisions and legislation It includes a discussion of curriculum concepts theories and alternative models of education and addresses the topics of gender and sexual orientation religion and the media The Encyclopedia also includes a Reader s Guide provided to help readers find entries on related topics It classifies entries in sixteen categories Alternative Educational Models Associations and Organizations Biographies Collegiate Education Curriculum Economics Gender Graduate and Professional Education Historically Black Colleges and Universities Legal Cases Pre Collegiate Education Psychology and Human Development Public Policy Publications Religious Institutions Segregation Desegregation Some entries appear in more than one category This two volume reference work will be an invaluable resource not only for educators and students but for all readers who seek an understanding of African American education both historically and in the 21st century

Education and Sociology David Levinson, Peter Cookson, Alan Sadovnik, 2014-01-21 First Published in 2002 This single volume reference provides readers and researchers with access to details on a wide range of topics and issues in the sociology of education Entries cover both national and international perspectives and studies as well as tackling controversial points in education today including gender inequality globalization minorities meritocracy and more This is a key one of a kind resource for all educational researchers and educators

City Schools and City Politics John Portz, Lana Stein, Robin R. Jones, 1999 An explanation of why some US cities are better at educational reform than others It relates education to politics showing how the whole village can be mobilized to better educate tomorrow's citizens. It is based on an 11-city study of civic capacity and urban education. Teach a New Day Lisa Michele Stulberg, 2001

Is Separate Unequal? Albert Leon Samuels, 2004. In this critique of the liberal perspective on desegregation, Samuels leads readers from the Brown decision to Green v. School Board of New Kent County and on to United States v. Fordice to show how the future of public black universities has been left uncertain at best. For Samuels, economic equality, not segregation, remains the primary obstacle to fully realized citizenship for African Americans. He argues that African Americans' pursuit of equality in higher education can be achieved without defunding programs at these schools and that their funding should be increased in recognition of their role in preserving African American culture.

Controlling Public Education Kathryn A. McDermott, 1999. Most Americans believe that local school districts are the only means by which citizens may exercise control over public education. Kathryn McDermott argues to the contrary that existing local institutions are no longer sufficient for achieving either equity or democratic governance. Not only is local control inequitable; it also fails to live up to its reputation for guaranteeing public participation and citizen influence. Drawing upon democratic theory and the results of field research in New Haven, Connecticut, and three suburbs, McDermott contends that our educational system can be made more democratic by centralizing control over funding while decentralizing most authority over schools to the level of schools themselves while enacting public school choice controlled for racial balance. To many people in Connecticut and elsewhere, the tension between equal opportunity for all students and local control of public education seems impossible to resolve. In 1996, the Connecticut Supreme Court ruled in Sheff v. O'Neill that local control produces unconstitutional segregation of public schools. Nearly all of the state's 169 towns operate their own public schools, and like the towns they serve, the schools are generally homogeneous with respect to race and socioeconomic class. In the Sheff ruling, the court declared that making school districts coterminous with town lines is the single most important factor contributing to the present concentration of racial and ethnic minorities in the Hartford public school system. At the same time, the court also acknowledged that the town-based school system presently furthers the legitimate nonracial interests of permitting considerable local control and accountability in educational matters. In Connecticut and elsewhere, it has often seemed necessary to choose between local control and equity in public education, and local control has almost always won. McDermott argues that rather than seeing local control and equity as conflicting goals, policymakers should regard them as equally important components of democracy in public education. In her view, a truly democratic system of education should both encourage citizen participation in school governance and contribute to the formation and maintenance of a social order in which equality of opportunity prevails over hierarchies of privilege. Centralizing distribution of resources and using controlled choice to end racial isolation would provide greater equality of opportunity, while decentralizing management of schools would expand citizen participation. McDermott's conclusions break new ground in our understanding of local school governance itself and call into question the conventional wisdom about local participation These findings should interest those who study school governance and reform especially in an urban setting as well as policy makers administrators teachers students and citizens eager to improve their schools
